

Vysakh R

Jr Copywriter

Playful, curious Junior Creative Copywriter with zero agency experience but a head full of strange ideas. Writes taglines that stick, captions that stop thumbs, and emails people actually want to open. Spec portfolio includes campaigns for Nike and Adidas. Obsessed with wordplay, rhythm, and the weird little details. Looking for a creative team that likes interesting.

vyshuchiha873@gmail.com

+918136967837

Calicut, Kerala

13-02-1997

Male

Education

JNMGHSS PUTHUPPANAM

Plus Two

Work experience

Adidas and Nike (Fiction)

2026 – Present

· Nike (spec campaign) – Wrote 10 social media captions and 3 billboard taglines for a fictional "Nike Run Club" campaign. Focused on motivational, short-form copy.

· Adidas (spec campaign) – Created a mock email sequence and Instagram carousel for an Adidas Originals product drop. Developed brand-consistent tone using "you" and confidence-driven language

Portfolio Highlights

• Hero Section (Nike spec) – Wrote 5 hero headlines. Favorite strange one: "Your legs are lying. Run anyway." Interesting twist: used all lowercase, no punctuation – tested against 3 traditional variants.

• Social Media (Adidas spec) – Created 15 Instagram captions. Strangest: "These shoes have seen things. Mostly pavement." Most interesting: a caption written entirely as a 6-line poem.

• Banner (Nike spec) – 4 display banners. Strange version: "Sore today. Strong tomorrow. Sore again Tuesday." Interesting: used emojis as verbs (🏃 ➡️ 💪).

• Email (Adidas spec) – 4-email welcome flow. Strange: opened with "Hello, future sneaker hoarder." Interesting: added a PS in every email – "PS: Your couch misses you. Ignore it."

• Tagline (Nike + Adidas spec) – 30 taglines total. Strangest: "Run like someone left the fridge open." Most interesting: 3 taglines that are just single words – "Float. Sting. Repeat."

• Google UVC (spec) – 3 video scripts (15 sec). Strange script: a shoe talking to itself in a closet. Interesting script: "This ad has no music. Just your heartbeat."

• Reel Scripting (Adidas spec) – 6 Reel scripts. Strangest: "POV: You're a pigeon watching runners. 'Why are they happy?'" Interesting: used only text overlays – no voiceover, no faces.

Interest

· Brand linguistics – enjoys analyzing how tone shifts across different industries

· Short-form storytelling – follows award-winning social media campaigns

· Scriptwriting – writes short video scripts for fun (15–30 seconds)

· Typography and layout – curious about how design and copy work together

· Consumer psychology – reads about why people click, buy, or scroll past

Key Strengths

✧ Strange idea generator – Writes headlines that stop scrolls and make people think, "Wait, what?"

✧ Tone chameleon – Can flip from Nike's confident & raw to Adidas' nostalgic & cool in one sitting.

✧ Self-starter – Built a full spec portfolio from zero briefs, zero clients, zero hand-holding.

✧ Obsessively editable – Kills darlings. Rewrites 10 times. Keeps only the weirdest, tightest, most interesting version.

✧ Short-form specialist – Thrives under 50 characters (banners, tags, hooks). Believes shorter is harder and better.

✧ Fearless with feedback – Never cried over a killed line. Yet. Will rewrite until it stings less.

✧ Concept + copy together – Thinks in visuals, scripts, and voice. Writes Reels like a director, not just a writer.

Soft Skills

- Resilient (kills darlings gladly)
- Collaborative
- Meets deadlines
- Detail-obsessed
- Curious & self-directed
- Time management

Skills

Brand voice developments

Social media copy

Video Scripting

Keyword Research

Proofreading

Landing Page & Hero Section

Headlines & Caption

Email Flow & Newsletter

Taglines

Banner & Display Ads

Ux microscopy

Seo Copywriting

Certifications

Hobbies

Footballer

Chess

Cricket

Video Games

Writing

Reading