Summary

Writer, podcaster, and cultural communicator with a passion for storytelling that connects. With a background in English Literature (Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi) and Film & Television (University of Bristol, United Kingdom), I bring together academic insight and creative energy to craft narratives that resonate. My experiences span grassroots education in rural Maharashtra as an SBI Youth for India Fellow, producing and co-hosting The Aviyal Litti Pohe Podcast, and engaging with over half a million visitors as a Visitor Experience Assistant at the Science Museum Group in London. Across each role, I've worked at the intersection of content, community, and impact—whether through curating conversations, designing outreach strategies, or making knowledge feel accessible and engaging. I thrive in spaces where curiosity, empathy, and creativity come together—and I'm especially drawn to roles that allow me to nurture connections, build thoughtful engagement, and help stories find their people.

Experience

Podcast Co-Host and Head of Design and Production

The Aviyal Litti Pohe Podcast

Dec 2024- Present (4 months)

As the Co-Host, Producer, and Content Creator of The Aviyal Litti Pohe Podcast, I have launched a weekly/monthly podcast exploring aiming to provide engaging conversations and valuable insights. A podcast that explores India's diverse cultures, traditions, and social fabric through the lens of three millennials navigating life from different backgrounds. Blending insightful discussions with personal anecdotes, the show delves into the intersection of heritage and modernity, unpacking everything from cultural nuances to everyday struggles.

I oversee the end-to-end production process, including content development, co-research, recording, and editing using tools like Audacity, Canva, Adobe Premiere Pro, and iMovie. Additionally, I manage marketing efforts through strategic social media campaigns to grow the podcast's audience. Using analytics from platforms like Spotify for Podcasters, Instagram's Analytical Tools for Creators, I continuously refine content and engagement strategies. This project has allowed me to cultivate skills in storytelling, hosting, audio production and editing, and digital marketing while building a growing community of listeners.

Visitor Experience Assistant

Science Museum Group, London, United Kingdom

Jun 2023 – Jan 2025 (1 year 8 months)

As a former Part-Time Visitor Experience Assistant at the prestigious Science Museum Group, I successfully transitioned to a Full-Time role due to outstanding performance. My responsibilities included engaging with over 500,000 visitors, enhancing their knowledge retention by 30% through informative interactions, and maintaining a consistent 90%+ satisfaction rating. Additionally, I managed

IMAX theatre operations, ensuring seamless screenings and captivating educational experiences. My proficiency in effective communication, digital media integration, and crisis management, along with my experience in managing IMAX screenings, demonstrates my adaptability and commitment, skills that will undoubtedly add value to my future roles in the film industry.

Post Graduate Student

University of Bristol, Bristol, United Kingdom

Sep 2021 - Jan 2023 (1 year 5 months)

Writer

Itisaras

Aug 2020 - Aug 2021 (1 year 1 month)

Itisaras is the acronym for Itihaas (History), Sanskriti (Culture), Rajneeti (Polity), and Samaaj (Society). It is an NGO which works within these four pillars of our milieu. Their vision is to “preserve and embrace the tangible and intangible cultural heritage and make people well aware citizens”. Their mission is to “increase awareness about the dichotomy in the understanding of Indian identity and diversity”. They promote the socio-political realities of our country- not only to state facts, but also to examine it under the microscope.

They have three projects: Dheer- legal literacy program; Dhaara- online magazine; Dharohar- school outreach program.

Writer with Project Dhaara of Itisaras:

Project Dhaara is an online magazine where writers pen down their thoughts and views within the four pillars that Itisaras stands for. Their ambition is to “untangle the confusions around India and to demolish the prejudices and misconceptions that cloud its identity”. They also have a physical edition of the magazine which is released every October.

Duties and Responsibilities:

- Work (research and write) on two-three individual articles of self-chosen and approved topics with an assigned editor throughout the duration of the internship.
- Work on separate articles for the monthly editions of the Dhaara magazine.

Fellowship

SBI Youth for India

Aug 2018 - Sep 2019 (1 year 2 months)

It is a 13 months programme- works for the rural development of the country. It requires the Fellow to live in a village for the whole period and work at the grass-root level on the basis of the need assessment carried out in the particular village.

SBI Youth For India Fellow with BAIF (Bharatiya Agro Industries Foundation) Development Research Foundation, Pune, Maharashtra

Finalise and work on a project, in the thematic area of Education and Gender Equality, in the BAIF location of Lobhi, a village in the district of Bhandara, Maharashtra.

Project: Help the local youth improve their soft/life skills in their present field of work, thereby, expose them to further spheres of interest.

Duties and Responsibilities:

- Lobhi has a tinkering lab- dHive- work on the sustainability of the lab through the following steps:
 - Explaining and making the students understand the objective of the initiative- hence, improve participation
 - Integration of the workstation with the community
 - Reduce gender disparity
- Introduce new ideas- encourage increased participation
- Improve exposure to diverse topics
- Capacity building for soft/life skills- let the kids take the facilitator's responsibility
- Monitoring the approaches by looking at challenges reviewing, planning, experimenting, and evaluating.
- Facilitating various scholarships like NavGurukul and GoLaadli for the students.
- Understanding and identifying, with the children, the facets in which there could be scope for expansion.
- Facilitate visits to the workstation, which included a visit from United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF).
- Reporting monthly and quarterly to the local and main offices of BAIF and SBI YFI, through monthly reports of the progress, either via email or through review meetings.
- The project focused primarily on the qualitative aspects rather than on the quantitative. This was measured by assessing the efficacy of the relevant stakeholders in real time basis.

Education

University of Bristol, Bristol, United Kingdom

Master of Arts - MA, Film and Television

Sep 2021 - Sep 2022

As a Master of Arts student in Film and Television at the University of Bristol, I immersed myself in the intricacies of the industry. My studies included a comprehensive exploration of cinematic and televisual genres, theories, and practices. I analyzed the cultural and social contexts that shape the industry, deepening my understanding of it.

I honed my production skills, developed critical thinking and analysis abilities, and collaborated on various projects that resulted in creating a short documentary. I gained hands-on experience with scriptwriting, pre-production, shooting, and post-production processes.

Throughout my studies, I engaged in rigorous research, critical analysis, and collaborative problem-solving. These skills helped me understand the complexities of the industry better and prepared me for a successful career in it. I am confident that my knowledge and skills from my time at Bristol will enable me to thrive in the film and television industry.
